🌟 Building Bridges, Creating Relationships: The EURHOPE Journey

Dear readers,

The EURHOPE project has come to an end, but the journey towards the autonomy of young people living in residential care is never an individual or time-limited challenge: it is a process that grows through the quality of relationships with positive adult role models, who are able to listen, support and inspire trust.

To turn these opportunities into concrete and widespread actions, the EURHOPE project combined educational work with ongoing promotion and awareness-raising activities.

Through meetings, dissemination events and continuous dialogue with local communities, organisations and European stakeholders, we work to shine a light on the rights of children and young people outside the family environment and on the importance of creating strong, supportive and welcoming local networks.

📖 What can you find in the EURHOPE online space?

Our digital platform is constantly enriched with practical resources designed for professionals, educators, organisations and decision-makers:

- Articles and Insights: Analysis and reflections on the central role of supportive relationships, the educational role of significant adults and the value of community integration.
- Promotion and Dissemination Activities: An overview of the local initiatives, workshops and awareness-raising campaigns carried out by the partnership to engage citizens and institutions.
- Training Toolkit Section: Up-to-date training modules and materials developed at European level to strengthen the skills of those working every day in residential care settings.
- The Methodological Guide: An essential methodological guide bringing together practical tools, good practices and recommendations to support relationships during the delicate transition to adulthood.
